Welcome to the 25th Milford Memories

Welcome to Milford

Hard to believe we are celebrating 25 years this year. What an exciting time it is for us. Each year Milford Memories transforms our quiet village into a bustling festival. People come from near and far to see what Milford is all about.

With the help of 500+ volunteers we put on the summer highlight for the village. More then 300 artists from across the US and Canada line the streets, with our local retailers and restaurants. Shopping, music, food and an event the whole family can enjoy is what Milford Memories is all about.

Milford Memories is unique; in addition to our art show we bring guests several events that will please young and old alike - from Cold Butt Euchre Tournament, Blind Canoe Race and Kids' Fishing Tournament to the rocking Beer Tent. There truly is something for everyone.

We hope that you enjoy your visit to our festival, but most of all we hope that you will make it a point to return to Milford in the future. Come back and see what we have to offer on a daily basis in our friendly village, where great shopping, unique dining and ambiance are a way of life.

Thank you for visiting our hometown!

Picture of success

Festival brings 300 artists to downtown for annual event

Both the founder and new president of the art show at Milford Memories are looking forward to the event because they always enjoy a good time.

"The atmosphere at this event is just like a big party. Everyone knows everyone and all the businesses are involved. This is just a lot of fun," said Raychel Rork, the president of Art In The Park, organizers of the art show segment of the festival.

Rork's mother, Dianne Quinn, founded the Milford Memories art show 25 years ago after a call from one of the original festival organizers, Denise Tyler. Quinn had been producing the Art In The Park event in Plymouth for a decade and the success and popularity of that show prompted Tyler ask her to bring her expertise to the Milford event.

A quarter of a century later, she are Rork are still enjoying Milford Memories because, Rork said, "Milford is a great town even when the festival isn't going on."

Raychel Rork

This year there will be more than 300 artists involved in the art show as Rork and Quinn were able to use a former gas station site at Main and Commerce where they have installed 24 additional artist's booths.

"We are looking forward to expanding into this new area. It's a prime corner at an intersection. It's always great to have more space because we can get in some of the artists we have had on a waiting list," Rork said.

Quinn has turned most of the management and operation of the event over to Rork, who was named president of the business two years ago. Quinn said that since Rork has been at every art show she has produced during the past 36 years, she has absolute confidence in her ability.

Rork, for her part, said she was looking forward to the new responsibility, but was glad that her mother would still be around should she need her help and advice. While Quinn was certainly present and helpful, Rork managed the recent Plymouth Art In The Park without a hitch, bringing more than 400 artists into that community for a weekend of art displays, entertainment and sales.

"We have noticed that one of the biggest attractions this year is personalization. People are having names or other personalization put on items for kids, parents, those in the military, for gifts. It's a real attraction of an art show, order it, stop back at the booth in an hour and the artist has it ready," Rork said.

"We love Milford Memories," Rork said, "This is the real pleasure of an art show. Where else can you go and speak directly with the person who created what you are looking for? Almost all these artists will make anything custom for you. Just ask them, talk to them. They can create exactly what you are looking for," she said. "That's what makes an art show so special."

Both events have only one real enemy: Mother Nature. During the Plymouth show, heavy rain and high winds caused some problems the first evening, but the weather calmed down and gave the artists a great weekend to display and sell their work.

All artists are carefully juried by Quinn and Rork and the artwork or craft must meet some pretty exacting standards. The pair has seen just about everything during the more than three decades they have been presenting the shows and have also handled just about any crisis that could occur.

"We are prepared for just about anything," Rork said. "The secret is to know that there are things you may not have thought of and be ready for whatever may happen." They have dealt with lost children, lost seniors, medical emergencies, lightning threats and blown away tents. They have handled it all with aplomb and gotten the show back on track.

Rork said that shopping would be particularly inviting this year as the Milford Memories artists, like those in Plymouth last month, are offering something for every taste.

"We know that everybody does not want super modern or super expensive art. We really do consider every taste when we sign the artists. We have it all this year," Rork said. "We have just about any style of artwork you could be looking for, from current fads to serious art, this year, we have it. Seriously, there really is something for everybody."

Behind the scenes

Success of annual event depends on host of volunteers

Without the constant dedication and effort of the Milford Memories committee, the event would never get off the ground, explained Joell Beether, executive director of the Huron Valley Chamber of Commerce.

"These individuals put their heart and souls into this festival and it shows. Some have been involved since the very beginning and some are new this year, but all the same they love what they do," she said.

Each committee member is listed below with the year they joined the committee, many were hard working volunteers for many years prior to joining the committee, noted Beether.

The Huron Valley Chamber of Commerce sponsors Milford Memories and is marking the 25th anniversary of the event this year.

In addition to the leadership of the committee, Milford Memories is aided by more than 500 volunteers from the residents of the Huron Valley. These individuals work numerous shifts and come back year after year, Beether said.

"They are an amazing bunch of people that we are proud to have on our team. Milford Memories volunteers really do make a difference."

Chamber is proud host of annual festival

Huron Valley Chamber of Commerce Building

Milford Memories is hosted by the Huron Valley Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber has been in operation since 1962 and serves the businesses and residents of the Village of Milford and the Townships of Commerce, Highland, Milford, and White Lake.

"Our mission to promote and support Huron Valley business in creating a better community guides us in our role as a vital business ally. A strong Chamber helps build a strong community, which is why we are proud to host an event like Milford Memories that brings hundreds or thousands of people to the quaint Village of Milford," said Executive Director Joell Beether.

"While the Chamber office serves as a clearing house of information for area residents, potential new residents, and visitors; our primary efforts continue to be directed toward helping our member businesses grow and succeed. Residents and visitors look to the Chamber to help them find community information regarding schools, parks, events, organizations, churches, and businesses. Area businesses look to the Chamber to help their business prosper in a competitive marketplace," she added.

"The Huron Valley Chamber creates opportunities to showcase our members' businesses, attract visitors to the area and ultimately promote the whole community," noted Beether.

Try a taste of our town

Enjoying the Milford Memories Summer Festival can really work up an appetite. Restaurants along Main Street are ready to satisfy visitors appetites and several of them have outdoor tents to provide a way to reach more guests. Restaurants with outdoor tents include:

Coratti's on Main
Health Mart
Jet's Pizza
Mainstreet Grill & Tavern
Village Butcher

Some local restaurants may not have a tent, but are still offering great meals for visitors. Looking for more of a festival flair for your meal? Visit the food court in Central Park where an amazing selection of treats awaits. From gyros to elephant ears, there is something for everyone's taste buds at this event.

Information booths

The festival has one main information booth to serve guests (see map for exact locations). Guests can stop by and inquire about the art show, events, local information or facilities on-site. Additionally, there are two water/information booths on site on each end that offer directions and information.

The information booths are sponsored by non-profit community partners who are manning the stations.

Red Cross and fire personnel to be on hand

The system of communications at Milford Memories, on and outside festival grounds, puts event staff in touch with police, fire, and medical emergency personnel as well as shuttle drivers to serve guests in any way needed.

The Huron Valley Chamber office at 317 Union is the main hub for all festival activities. If you have any questions or concerns about any issue or situation, visit the office for immediate help.

First Aid, sponsored by American Red Cross and Milford Fire Department is available in the First Aid tent. The tent is located right in the center of festival grounds and manned by American Red Cross staff to assist with minor urgent conditions like cuts and scrapes, bee stings, and dehydration.

In addition to the hospital first aid station, Huron Valley Ambulance bicycle medics and Milford Fire Department emergency personnel will patrol the grounds as well, in case of emergency.

Should visitors need help or first aid, they should contact a festival volunteer who can immediately direct them to the tent.

Kudu Klips

Artist Patti VanTonDer will be offering her unique Kudu Klips for hair at booth 177 .
The artist claims her hair jewelry is the only hair accessory that will stay in every hair type. Purchases help Build On Hope, a group that cares for orphans, the elderly and endangered wildlife in Africa. For information visit www.buildonHOPE.org.
